

Jacob Middleton Jr. is 27 years old and incarcerated in Louisiana, USA

New Orleans raised, and yet connected within the ties of the city as the clouds are tied within the sky. We could say that over the years I've been selfish and abused the love around me but since I've been incarcerated it's indescribable to explain the value and apperception that I currently hold towards life in its self. It's been a long road I admit, but I understand that I must accept my faults and flaws of life.

My time spent as a facilitator and a mentor changing the lives of at risk youth has taken a great part towards my rehabilitation while I also do hospice care on my free time. I've found connection within people as I facilitate classes but sometimes I feel like something is still missing deep down inside. It's indescribable because there are many people that surround me but yet I find myself still feeling alone. I find that music helps me escape from the reality of feeling trapped inside these walls and I just wanna express to someone and free my heart just as the music frees soul.

I would like to build a friendship with someone I can trust and over time we can build to a point of feeling comfortable enough to express freely and laugh with one another. Trust-Honesty-Loyalty and Respect is a foundation towards a great friendship and leads to great communication whenever the conversation never leaves its circle.
